Usage of Electronic Journals and Database

More than 5000 titles of electronic journal (ex. Science, Nature, SciVerse ScienceDirect, SpringerLINK, Wiley online library, ACM), and databases (ex. JDreamII and CiNii) are having agreement with our university. It is necessary to comply with the copyright law and terms of use strictly, when using these electronic journals and databases. Most distributors decide their own usage policy. Please be aware that they generally prohibit the following uses.

Just in case, if any violate use in terms of service happened, even it is a personal violation, the usage of whole university will be stopped as a penalty. It will lead some difficulty for supporting our university research education activity. It is convenient that electronic journals are available 24 hours from any laboratory. But please be caution when you use it !!

The following uses are prohibited

✓ Massive downloading in short time manually or by using a program

As for downloading the electronic journals, it is not limited to storing files on USB memory or PC, opening text files online will also be counted.

Technically massive downloading is prohibited. Even if you download manually, it shall be considered as excessive use if you download a lot of files at one time. In case of book form journal, copying the entire issues of a journal is against the copyright law. It is also same for electronic journal. The allowed range for single download is less than half of a magazine according to the copyright law.

✓ Use for any purpose other than academic research and education

✓ Reproduction and distribution to others

The users are limited to the member of this university. The act of replication and distributing the downloaded or printed out articles to one or more people is not allowed. Please apply wisely for personal survey and research.

✓ The act of violating on the copyright law

The works such as books or magazine are copyrighted. The copyright law is not only limited in paper-medium material, it is also same with the information of pictures and characters which are provided in internet. In using electronic journal and database, please comply with the noted terms and conditions of service which is published in `Terms and Condition`.
